Orders Prepared To Take Out

About North Chinese Cuisine

Chinese dishes take longer to prepare than American dishes and this is especially true of North Chinese cuisine. To bring out its exquisite flavor, each dish is individually prepared while you wait. This cooking process requires special seasoning and timing, because nothing is pre-cooked and all dishes are served from the work. M.S.G. and other seasonings can vary according to your request. We ask you patience while waiting for your order to be prepared.

Suggestions About Ordering

For the patron who is inexperienced in ordering Chinese food, the pre-set Harbin Dinner will offer an excellent first time exposure.

If you choose to order a la carte, usually a sufficient quantity of food for a party of two would be one small soup, one hot hors d'oeuvre, steamed rice and two dishes from the choice of entrees and dessert, if you choose. As your party increase in number, additional dishes should be added accordingly, usually one entree per person. If your party is large, to insure a sufficient quantity of a particular dish for the group, 1½ or double portions may be ordered.

We suggest that you vary your choice of entrees, choosing from different categories: beef, chicken, fish, pork, shrimp, etc.; choosing some spicy hot and some bland dishes. Please do not hesitate to ask the assistance of the waitress or waiter when ordering. We thank you for your patronage and wish you good appetite.

Management

Many specialty items not listed on the menu are available. For your party of six or more, ask the waitress or waiter for suggestions for a delightful evening of delicious authentic North Chinese dining.
